A business to carry forward.

I am Andy Leverenz, a product designer and developer near St. Louis, exploring my first business acquisition. If you are considering a sale, I would like to hear what you have built.

What I am looking for

Established online businesses

- Small software products
- Digital products
- Online businesses with paying customers

A business that works today

- Operating history and consistent revenue
- Customers who have a reason to come back
- Clear financial records and a realistic handoff

Local service businesses

- Businesses around St. Louis
- Reliable service, good systems, strong customer relationships

Room for practical improvements

- Improve the product and simplify workflows
- Reduce repetitive work through automation

What fits my search

These are targets, not rigid minimums. If your business is close, a conversation is still worth it.

Established local business

- $1M to $2.5M purchase price
- $400k to $750k SDE, ideally $500k+
- 3x SDE or less, 5+ years in business
- St. Charles County or greater St. Louis, within about an hour of St. Charles

Smaller online business

- $400k to $1.25M purchase price
- $250k to $400k SDE
- Recurring or repeat revenue
- Existing team or support, runnable in 5 to 15 hours a week

Especially interested in

- B2B services; compliance, inspection, and testing
- Vertical B2B SaaS; B2B data and subscriptions
- Medical billing and licensing; facility maintenance
- RV and boat storage; website maintenance and support

Probably not a fit

- Restaurants, retail, trend e-commerce
- Amazon-dependent, affiliate, ad, or SEO-only businesses
- Generic SaaS or AI wrappers; founder-dependent agencies

How I would approach it

1

Start with a conversation

Tell me about the business, your role, and what you would like from a sale.

2

Understand the details

Agree on what to share, then review finances, customers, and everyday work.

3

Work through the handoff

Agree a clear transition plan for knowledge, relationships, and responsibilities.
